

Christina M. Zini

Christina M. Zini is a natural-born leader, passionate about inspiring and empowering women to pursue their dreams.

Over the course of her global career as a management consultant and professional development leader with PricewaterhouseCoopers and IBM Global Business Services, Christina led organizations through large-scale, transformational change and guided thousands of individuals in their professional development and advancement, with a special focus on developing women. After nearly 14 years of service, Christina resigned from IBM in 2011 to pursue her own dream of launching a coaching practice focused on empowering women.

Christina's mission is to coach and develop women leaders around the world, helping them to move past fears and limiting beliefs and leverage their innate passions and strengths to live the life of their dreams. Her coaching practice offers individual and group coaching, as well as developmental workshops. She also mentors young women and invests in women entrepreneurs in developing countries.

Christina's greatest professional accomplishment is founding the Qatar Professional Women's Network (QPWN), a non-profit aimed at empowering women in the Middle East. Under her direction from 2010-2012, the group grew to over 2000 members, hosting over 30 events per year to support women in finding work, developing themselves, and networking. To recognize her leadership, Christina was featured on the covers of Woman Today and The Woman in January 2011.

Ms. Zini holds a Bachelor of Arts in Communication and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from the University of Michigan, as well as a Master of Public Administration from Northern Michigan University. She is an accomplished writer, public speaker, and facilitator, who has delivered speeches and workshops around the world. Outside of her professional interests, Christina is a wellness enthusiast, with several health and fitness certifications under her belt. She is an avid traveler who has visited 50 countries and lived in North America, Europe, and the Middle East. Christina currently resides in Houston, Texas, with her family.

Visit www.christinazini.com for more information about Christina and her coaching practice.